Please also pay attention to the announcement made by the Organisers, as changes might be made at any stages of the competition.

8. TIPS TO GET STARTED

For the case analysis, please make sure you have a thorough understanding of the materials. Be sure to pinpoint and highlight issues you decide to focus on, and construct a solid structure for the report. We appreciate originality, thus we are more interested in your ideas. You can use figures, graphs, images to support your points. Models can be useful when coming to analysis and illustrate possible solutions to the current issue. Please clearly state the citations and reference included in your reports to avoid plagiarism.

Please conduct your presentation based on your report and your findings. It would be useful to keep the presentation simple, and present your ideas with evaluations. Make sure the pace and materials you are going to present can actually help the panel of judges to understand your analysis and ideas.

9. UNFORESEEN CIRCUMSTANCES & RIGHT RESERVED

If circumstances which affect the progress of a team's project arise and these are not dealt with elsewhere in this document, then the Organisers reserve the right to respond as they deem appropriate. The Organisers reserve the right to display the submitted materials from participating teams for future use and publication /promotion purposes.

10. THE FINAL DECISION

The Organisers have the sole right to decide on the winning team based on the assessment requirements.
